Latest Foreign Intelligence.

The ship John Morgan, arrived at New-York, from Liverpool, brings London papers to the 2d of May.— From these papers (says the Editor of the Commercial Advertiser) it appears, that a considerable change has taken place in the British ministry—that in consequence of the escape of the French fleet, the sailing of the Cork fleet, for the present, is suspended; that nine sail of French Gun-Boats had been captured; that an important victory was obtained in the East, over Holkar, by the British generals, Frazer and Lake; that four Spanish frigates with treasure, from America, had fallen into the hands of the British blockading squadron, off Cadiz; that a fleet of thirty ships of the line would in a short time be ready to sail from the Spanish ports; and that troops were assembling at Corunna for a secret expedition. It appears, likewise, by an article from Algiers, dated March 16, that the Dey had required of the American agent a ship of the line, and that when informed that we had frigates, but no ships of the line, he still persisted in his unreasonable demand. A report also prevailed, and was published in London, that Admiral Sir John Orde, had been joined by Lord Nelson, and that the combined squadrons of the British had completely blockaded up the French and Spanish in the port of Cadiz, after the French had failed.

From the resignations and appointments which have taken place in the British Cabinet, we may reasonable infer that considerable anxiety pervades the public mind. During the Addin-ton administration, an administration as feeble as it was prejudicial to the best interests of the country, Mr.
Pitt was viewed by a majority of the people, as the only man capable of saving the British empire. Without his consummate skill and his judicious and well timed operations, a total annihilation of national prosperity was deemed inevitable. Under these circumstances, he was once more called to resume the reigns of government, and, in accepting the office and administering its duties, he had to stem this torrent of a most vehement and vindictive minority. No arts have been left untried to excite the passions and prejudices of the people. By charges the most base, and calumnies the most unfounded, the opposition is increasing in numbers, and daily becoming more formidable. The charges of peculation which have been made against Lord Melville seem now to form the principal topic discussed by the politicians of England; and hints have been thrown out that Mr. Pitt has been privy to the business, and that he deserves to share in the disgrace. These insinuations evidently originated in disappointment and malice. When we survey the official conduct of Mr. Pitt, and view his eminent talents and distinguished patriotism, we cannot but believe, that he will still prove himself to be, what he has ever been, a faithful guardian of honor, the safety, and the best interests of his country.

BRITISH PALIAMENT, April 25.

LORD MELVILLE'S CASE.

Mr. Whitebread having enquired if the answer which his majesty had been pleased to return to the resolutions of the house which had been laid before him on Thursday the 11th inst. had been reported to the house.

The speaker said that he had thought it a proper mark of respect to his majesty and the house, to make the communication of the answer of his majesty the first business of the day.

On motion of Mr. Whitebread his majesty's answer was again read.

His majesty's answer.

"His majesty shall on all occasions give the fullest attention to whatever may be the subject of communication by his commons; and on the present occasion, what they offered contained matter of great importance."

Mr. Whitebread then said that he could not forbear expressing his astonishment that after such an interval no step had been taken to evince his majesty's sense of the importance of the resolutions of the house.

Several Gazettes had appeared since the resolutions were carried up, and none of them had announced that the name of Lord Melville had been expunged from the list of his majesty's Privy Council. Neither had the house been informed that night his majesty had given orders for the books being laid before him for that purpose. Unquestionably there had been proceedings for the last few days which might have contributed to occupy his majesty's attention from this subject. He was therefore anxious to know from the right honorable gentleman (Mr.
Pitt) before he gave notice of any motion on the subject, whether it was that right honorable gentleman's intention to recommend to his majesty to expunge the name of lord Melville from the list of the Privy Council.

The Chancellor of the exchequer said that he did not feel himself bound in consequence of any thing that had occurred in that house, on the day when the resolutions of parliament had been ordered to be laid before his majesty, to give any such advice to his majesty as that which the honorable gentleman supposed. On the evening of Wednesday a motion to address his majesty on that subject had been made, and had afterwards been withdrawn, as it did not seem to bethe sense of a great many members, who had supported the original resolutions that the house was in a condition at the moment to proceed to such an extemity. It was then argued that a removal from any place of trust and confidence would be sufficient, till farther light was thrown on the subject, by it having been ascertained by a select committee how far the noble lord was implicated in the business.

A suggestion however was thrown out, that the noble lord though he had then retired from office might be again restored, and hold other places of trust and confidence, & it had been proposed, as a step which would be sufficient to guard against this circumstance that the resolutions of the former night should be laid before his majesty. In this proposition he had concurred. But he certainly did understand it to have been the opinion and sense of the house, that the step would of itself be satisfactory. And under that impression he had not thought himself called on nor did he now feel himself called on, till he was otherwise instructed by the house, to make any recommendation on the subject to his majesty.

Mr. Whitebread thought that a sense of duty should have dictated to the right hon. gentleman to have formed a different conclusion from that which he had now professed. Indeed it had seemed to him absolutely impossible, after the solemn manner in which it had been determined that the resolutions of that night should be laid before his majesty, that the right honorable gentleman could have abstained from recommending to his majesty a measure which seemed so naturally to follow from the knowledge of those resolutions. He could not figure how it was possible in more pointed terms to have expressed the sentiments of the house.
The step which they had adopted was to his conception, equally marked and pointed, as if the motion which he had that night submitted has been agreed to.
If, however, the right honorable gentleman thought that he had sufficiently satisfied his duty by allowing things to remain as they were, he (Mr.

Whitebread) felt that he would not charge his, without giving notice of motion, similar to the one which had formerly withdrawn, for the open day. He then fixed Tuesday next for that purpose.

Mr. Whitebread then proceeded to call the attention of the house to the subject of the motions of which he had given notice previous to the recess. He could not forbear from congratulating the house on the sense which seemed universally to be entertained outdoors of the conduct of the house on the subject of national abuses. The right honorable gentleman opposite to him seemed also sensible of the general spirit which had been awakened through the country. He had that night, prematurely in one sense, and tardily in another, given notice of a motion which he unquestionably meant to bring to meet the wishes of the people. The right hon. gentleman had indeed given notice of a much more extensive motion than had yet been proposed; but whether he had done so in consequence of hearing that such an intention had been declared in another quarter and wished to take it out of their hands for the purpose of doing it away he should not at present pretend to judge. The right honorable gentleman had expressed a doubt if there existed a nearly or improper expenditure in the military department.—On that subject he (Mr. Whitebread) entertained no doubt. He was convinced that in the military department as gross a system of speculation and plunder existed as had already in part been discovered in the naval expenditure. An honorable gentleman, a friend of the noble lord had, in vindicating him from the present charge, asserted that he possessed opportunities in another department of making and immense an rapid fortune, without any chance of detection.
That honorable gentleman was well acquainted with the truth of what he said;—and was it to be supposed that after what he had seen, that such opportunities did exist; and that to without the possibility of detection that no advantage was taken of them.
The thing was hardly to be looked for.
The first motion which he should not submit to the consideration of the house was for a select committee, for taking into farther consideration the tenth report of the commissioners of the naval enquiry. There were still some dark parts in that report, on which he wished that further inquiry should take place. It was not his intention to enter at length into what passed on the last debate on that subject, farther than to say, that he thought the right honorable gentleman opposite had not paid that proper respect to that house and to the commissioners acting under that authority, which might have been expected in not dismissing a person who had refused to answer questions put to him, when called on under an adjournment of parliament to give evidence. Would it be maintained that every witness was to be entitled to decline answering a question which might be put to him on the pretence that it might criminate himself; and that the judge was entitled to ask in what respect, and to ascertain whether the allegation was real or feigned? The right honorable gentleman himself actually condemned Wilson, and condemned his own conduct by the apology he now made for both. He now confesses that the of the act of parliament does not apply to Wilson.—According to his own account Wilson tells him, and he tells the house, that Wilson was the instrument and tool of Trotter. Would his being so involve him in legal even moral guilt, so as to excuse him from answering questions? The pretence was ridiculous, it was to free his principal not himself. It was his wish to trespass on the time of house and he should therefore consider moving his first motion for the appointment of a select committee to make further inquiry into the conduct in the tenth report of the commissioners of naval enquiry to report to the house.

SANNAH, May 31.
Extracts from the Log Book of the ship Marshall, capt.
O. Buoker, arrived at this port from Liverpool: "May 12, 1805. lat. 33d. 14n. long. 74d. 50m. at half past 5 o'clock P. M. delivered a schooner, under a foretop sail and jib, apparently in distress; at 8 came up with her, found no person on board, her top sail was second reefed jib sheet; second reefs in the main sail, nearly full of water, and called the Maria of Boston. Took from her, 45 fathoms of inch cable, a jib, a few spare blocks, and a small quantity of running rigging. It being a night, and the hatches being caulked, could not ascertain what her cargo was. She appeared to be in good repair."

"May 9, spoke schooner Farmer, 4 days from Philadelphia, Joy, master from Barbadoes—lat. 33, 32, long, 66, 80."

June 1.
On Tuesday evening last, the following vessels ran ashore on the North Breakers, a little to the southward of the light house, on Tybee Island: viz. Ship Birmingham, Salisbury, of and from Baltimore; brig Ceres, Brown, of and from New York; brig Lovely Last, Duplex, of do; and schooner Franklin, of do. The three former were got off, without sustaining any very material damage: the latter is totally lost. Having her deck stove in, and lying on her beam ends, a great part of the cargo had washed out, before any assistance could be obtained. The articles saved from the wreck are of very little consideration.

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.
The following, is the latest from Cadiz, and is very satisfactory as to the probable force which has lately made its appearance in the West Indies:

"CADIZ, April 12.
"I take up my pen to inform you of the blockade of this port being raised on the 10th. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon appeared off this port, the French fleet from Toulon, consisting of 11 sail of the line, six frigates and two brigs; and being joined by one French man of war, one corvette, and a brig, and six Spanish men of war and one frigate from this port, they proceeded on as is supposed, for Ferrol. The English fleet, under Sir John Orde, of six sail of the line, and frigates, kept in sight all the time, and the next day followed the combined fleets. The blockade, therefore, is completely raised; and as the Spanish fleet has sailed, there is no probability of our being again blockaded perhaps all the war.

The following articles removes every doubt, respecting the arrival of the combined fleet at Martinique.

A gentleman passenger in the schr.
Louisa, arrived at the Lazaretto from St. Pierre, informs, that he left at Fort Royal, a French and Spanish fleet, as follows:

12 French of the line, and 7 frigates; 6 Spanish of the line, and 1 frigate;

Under the command of admirals Ville-neuve in the Bucentaur of 90 guns, and Gravino in the Argonaut of 120; they had 10,000 troops on board under general Lauriston; the destination was not known, but the officers stated that they expected further reinforcements; they had a passage of 34 days from Cadiz, where they had not been blockaded.

The news of the arrival of the combined fleets at Martinico, struck a great consternation at St. Kitts. What few ships were ready for sea bound to England, sailed immediately, under convoy of a frigate and sloop of war, and the merchant ships which were not ready and some that were expected from the other islands, were ordered to take the best care they could of themselves, as the small number of British ships of war, in the windward islands, could afford little or no protection.

Two frigates of the combined fleet were seen taking soundings off St. Lucie, and it was generally supposed the combined fleet would begin there and make a general sweep among the British islands.

On comparing dates and circumstances it appears that the intended operations of the combined fleet in the West-Indies must have partially failed.
It will be recollected that the Toulon squadron put to sea in January last, about the time that the ships from Rochfort sailed, but was forced, by drifts of weather, to return. The Rochfort Squadron proceeded on its destination and remained some time in the West-Indies: not being joined by the Toulon division it has returned to Europe.

How far this circumstance may de-range, or what delay it may occasion in executing their plans, remains to be seen. Should the force now at Martinique be deemed insufficient to carry them into effect, and time be thereby afforded the British fleet to arrive, the principal object of the campaign may be entirely frustrated.

As the danger from Yellow Fever will be thereby greatly increased, every Citizen of the United States must deprecate the spread of war in the West-Indies.

Admiral Cochrane having sailed from Jamaica with a convoy for England; parted with them to the windward of the islands, and then arrived at St. Kitts with his own ship only, the other ships of war having probably gone on with the convoy.

BALTIMORE, June 14.
Arrived, English brig Shannon, Curran, from Liverpool, last from Whitehaven, 59 days.
May 23, spoke ship Befey, of Boston, from Charleston for Liverpool. June 10, spoke ship United States, from Alexandria for Liverpool. The Shannon on her passage from Liverpool to Baltimore, 60 leagues to westward of Tory, was taken by a French privateer, who took the master and 3 of the hands out, and left the mate (who at present commands) and 4 men, and put ten men on board, and ordered the brig for the first port in Holland; the next day the mate and his four men rose on the privateer's men, and secured them under the hatches; four days afterwards made the coast of Ireland, and obliged them to get out of the cabin window into the boat, and go ashore, after which the brig put into Whitehaven, to obtain a supply of those articles they had robbed them of.

Schr. Hope, Lawton, 10 days from Savannah.
Left, brig Befey and Peggy, Holden, for this port, in 2 or 3 days; Eagle, Green, for do. and ship Birmingham, Salisbury, of do. after being ashore at Tybee, got off with little injury.
Passed in Savannah river three ships at anchor, bound up.

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.
MONDAY, JUNE 17.

Extract of a letter received by the sloop Dove, (arrived at New York) from a merchant at St.
Bartholomew, dated May 28.

"Guadeloupe has been embargoed these ten days, in consequence of the arrival of another French squadron, with a strong armed force.
They have just commenced active operations, which appear, by a vessel arrived here from St.
Lucie yesterday, first to be directed against that island. As there is at present no English force in this country to cope with them, it is generally believed, that they will attempt the whole English colonies. The embargo is at present general in all the islands, and under the circumstances mentioned, it may be expected to remain for some time."

CAPTURE OF THE TWO FRIENDS.
The regular trading American ship Two FRIENDS, Captain McNEIL, from London for this port, with a full cargo of Dry Goods, supposed to be worth One Hundred Thousand Pounds Sterling, was captured on Tuesday last, in ten fathoms water, by the French privateer schooner L'Emerance, Capt. Moisan, from Guadeloupe, now cruising off our bar.

The plea urged by the privateer for capturing the ship, was, that she had not a certificate from the American Consul resident in London, declaring her to be American property.

The passengers and crew were permitted to take out their baggage, &c. and were treated civilly while on board the privateer. Captain McNeil, the cook, and two boys, remain on board the ship—which, after putting 24 Frenchmen on board, they ordered for Guadeloupe.— The passengers arrived in town this morning in a pilot boat.

The Two Friends left Gravesend on the 21st April, and was 42 days out when captured.

The privateer mounts four 12 pound carnades, a long brass 12-pounder, and two double fortified 4 pounders; and had on board 97 men.
They stated that, one of the Guineamen which they had taken, bound into this port, had 450 slaves.

Thus, by the daring and piratical proceeding of a small picaroon, is our port completely blockaded, and our citizens wantonly robbed of their property! The disappointment and loss occasioned by the capture of the Two Friends will be sensibly felt by our importers. She was literally crammed with Goods, and the only ship expected from London with the Spring supplies.

FROM FRANCE.
"I have just arrived from Nantz, and embrace the first opportunity to forward you a file of Paris papers, and a few items of Paris news. Our passage has not been a short one; but possibly the accounts may be the latest direct from France.

"When I left France the Toulon fleet had been out twenty one days.
Their destination a profound secret.

"The Paris papers, you will see announce the death of admiral Bruix, commander in chief of the imperial flotilla at Boulogne. He had been sent for to Paris, and a few days before his death had an audience of his majesty the Emperor, at the Thuilleries. The emperor insisted upon the performance of some movement by the flotilla, which the admiral told him was impracticable —At this the emperor became enraged and like the Macedonian Madman, gave the admiral a slap in the face. Four days after he was dead. People in Paris did not hesitate to say he was poisoned; but it is more probable he died of grief and chagrin.

Mr. Robert Patterson, brother to Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte, had been in Paris the last winter; and had dined with Prince Joseph (who by the by, is the best of the family;) but no notice was taken of him by any others of the imperial family. It was reported that Lucien Bonaparte had been arrested in Italy, and was then confined in some castle in France.

"The French emperor has declared himself against allowing American consuls to reside in the French colonies.

"Mr. Livingston, I am told, means to adduce the gold box as evidence of the respect he enjoyed at the French Court. Poor old gentleman he little thinks it intended, merely as a payment for the conspiracy letter, and his journey to England. The little hotspur who governs Europe, has too much contempt for every thing that smells of republicanism, to reward or compliment any man who ever breathed republican air. Liberty, equality, fraternity, and indivisibility, once so popular in France have become obsolete words; and no vestige of them is to be found on the public buildings they once were intended to consecrate, Sic transit gloria mundi.

"The late heavy duties on colonial produce, together with large quantities at market, has completely stagnated business at Nantz: Coffee was 48 to 49 sols, dull; and every description of West India produce very heavy; coffee now pays fifty francs per cwt. duties ten per cent. war tax on that makes it 10½ cents nearly per pound."

Valuable Property for Sale.

The subscriber being desirous of removing to the western country, offers for sale, the following Tracts of LAND, in Fairfax county, Virginia, viz.

The Tract on which he resides, containing about 740 acres, 5 miles below Alexandria, and within one mile of Potomac river, in an agreeable neighborhood; the situation pleasant and remarkably healthy; the land level and well adapted to the production of Indian corn, wheat, and other small grains. The improvements are, a large and commodious dwelling house, two stories high, 54 feet long and 35 feet wide, with four rooms and a passage on a floor, a piazza nine feet wide on each front, the full length of the house, and an excellent cellar under the whole house divided into four rooms and a passage; a good kitchen, meat house, dairy, ice house, and every other necessary building, all in good repair, with a well of excellent water; a good garden, apple & peach orchard, and about 40 acres of excellent timothy meadow, and as much more may be made at a very small expense: Also, an overseer's house, negro quarters, granary, &c.

One other Tract, containing about 1250 acres, 6 miles below Alexandria, divided into two farms sufficient to work 9 or 10 hands on each: The buildings on these farms consist only of overseers' houses, negro quarters, granaries, &c. There are 40 or 50 acres of good timothy meadow well enclosed, and a great deal more may be made at a trifling expense; the land very level and fertile, with an abundance of timber. This tract is allowed, by those who know it well, to be equal, if not superior, to any tract of the same extent in this part of the country. It will be sold entire, or divided, as may be found most convenient.

One other Tract near the last mentioned one, containing 402 acres, rented to tenants at will; a considerable portion of which is level and the soil good. There are on it, two or three beautiful and commanding situations for buildings, and a meadow from which one of the tenants sells from 15 to 20 tons of hay a year.

Another Tract, of about 325 Acres, 9 or 10 miles below Alexandria, through which the stage road leading from thence to Richmond passes: This would be an excellent stand for a tavern, there being none at this time between Alexandria and Colchester, a distance of 16 or 18 miles: Also,

One other Tract near the last, containing about 400 acres. Both the last mentioned tracts are likewise rented to tenants at will; they produce good corn, wheat, and other small grain, and there is on each of them a considerable quantity of excellent timothy meadow in good order, from which the tenants sell a great deal of hay. For terms, apply to the subscriber, five miles below Alexandria.

WITHIN two and an half miles of Dumfries, on the waters of Quantico, which is as constant a stream as any in this part of the country, and in an exceeding healthy situation; very conveniently situated to a fine wheat country, not being more than half a mile out of the way (in going to Dumfries) from the main road leading from Fauquier court house, Centerville &c. (and thought by some not any out of the way at all) and a very good road to it; together with from 90 to 100 acres of land, the greatest part of which is well wooded; the Mill is an overshot, with a wheel of 20 feet 9 inches and 4 feet head, with 2 pair of stones, 1 pair of French burrs of 5 feet, the other of Cologne, with every apparatus necessary for carrying on merchant business to the best advantage. The Mill House is 50 feet long by 27 feet wide, 2 stories high, together with a barn, stable, cowhouse and lumber house convenient to the Mill, part of the above tract of land. There is on this place a small Dwelling House, Kitchen & Meat House—also a very thriving young Peach Orchard, with other Fruit Trees.

The situation of this property must render it a desirable acquisition to any person inclined to engage in this line of business, particularly as it is situated so near tide water. It is deemed unnecessary to say any thing more respecting the premises, as it is presumed any person inclining to purchase will wish to see them.
The subscriber will show the property; or, if he be absent, Mr. James G. Evans, living thereon, will attend. Nothing would induce me to part with this valuable property, but some pre-sling demands which I am anxious to discharge.

The Conditions of the Sale will be—

One-half of the purchase money in hand, the other half in 9 or 18 months, bearing interest from the day of sale; approved security will be required. Possession will be given soon as the crop is off; and the latter place on Christmas next.
